

Think about the implications of this. A person's internet traffic is analagous to the "papers and effects" listed below. Certainly, it SHOULD be hard for government of any kind to have access to every American's transactions and communications. A provision to require a court order for any internet communications to be intercepted must be included.

The Constitution of the United States of America:

Bill of Rights

Amendment IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.
